

QUEENSLAND FIRE AND EMERGENCY SERVICES

CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER, STRATEGY AND CORPORATE SERVICES DIVISION (SCSD)

ADAM STEVENSON

Adam Stevenson is the Chief Operating Officer of the Strategy and Corporate Services Division of Queensland Fire and Emergency Services (QFES). The Strategy and Corporate Services Division is responsible for leading the integrated framework and vision and driving performance and strategic capability across QFES. The Division works very closely with QFES' portfolio partners to ensure the planning, policy and capability of its people, services and equipment are at their optimum in readiness for service delivery to the communities of Queensland. Adam has extensive experience in developing strategic and reform strategies for organisations allows him to focus on governance, performance, transformation and risk as well as high level engagement with key stakeholders. Adam commenced with QFES in early 2017 as the Executive Director responsible for Executive, Ministerial and Corporate Services.

Formerly, as General Manager Queensland Operations for Trade and investment Queensland, his responsibilities included servicing the requirements of international and interstate investors, Queensland's regions and exporters in priority industry sectors. After beginning his career in the private finance sector, Adam held a series of government executive leadership positions over the past 11 years, including employment service delivery; ICT strategy; indigenous economic participation; corporate services; strategic policy and planning; industrial relations and training and workplace health and safety. Adam has a Bachelor of Economics and won a university award for studies in international trade.